Looking back

As I reflect on the impact we have had over the last year at Stonewall Housing, I am super proud of the remarkable progress we have made together. We measure success in a number of different ways in the organisation and the one that means most to me is the number of LGBTQ+ people we have been able to help. This year, Stonewall Housing saw a 33% increase in the number of LGBTQ+ people we have been able to help, something for us to celebrate, but it also demonstrates the growing need for safe housing for those within our communities.

In the context of this increased need, our commitment to expanding our reach and helping as many LGBTQ+ people as we can has been strengthened. We have made significant strides in extending our services beyond London, ensuring that LGBTQ+ individuals across the UK have access to the support they deserve. Our dedicated team has worked tirelessly to address the unique needs of the most vulnerable among us, from older LGBTQ+ individuals facing isolation to trans and gender nonconforming people who encounter systemic discrimination daily.

Our training programmes have also empowered hundreds of professionals to provide more inclusive and supportive services, a testament to our ongoing mission to create a more equitable society for all and our work with the LGBTQ+ Housing Pledge Scheme is ensuring LGBTQ+ social housing residents are receiving a truly inclusive service.

So yes, I'm super proud of what we've achieved, but our work is far from finished. As we look to the future, we will continue to do everything we can to grow our services, advocate for systemic change, and ensure that every LGBTQ+ person in the UK can find a safe place to call home. We cannot do this alone. Your continued support, whether through donations, volunteering, or spreading the word, is vital to our success.

Together, we can build a future where every LGBTQ+ individual has the safety, security, and sense of belonging they deserve. Thank you for standing with us, and for being a part of this incredible journey.

Steven McIntyre, CEO

Our year in numbers

The number of people Stonewall Housing supports continues to grow year after year. Our support varies depending on the specific needs of each service user, whether through one of our supported accommodation schemes, or through advice and advocacy for LGBTQ+ individuals who are homeless or at risk of homelessness.

Between April 2023 and March 2024, Stonewall Housing provided support to 3,202 people, representing a 33% increase compared to the previous year.

The definition of homelessness is difficult to pinpoint, as it encompasses a range of circumstances, such as being at risk of domestic violence, living in uninhabitable conditions, or lacking a permanent place for a mobile home. Everyone's experience of homelessness is unique, and perceptions of it can vary widely, making it hard to define concisely. In this report, we define homelessness as the state of being without stable, safe, and functional shelter.

The definition of homelessness is difficult to pinpoint.

The table below outlines the most common reasons for our service users' housing situations and their current housing situation, from the highest-ranking answer at the top of the table to the lowest-ranking reason at the bottom. While these categories represent significant trends, the underlying reasons often extend beyond the categories listed.

The data reveals that LGBTQ+ specific discrimination was the leading cause of housing instability amongst our service users. Coupled with the fact that the most common current housing situation is living with family, it underscores the significant issue of familial rejection leading to unstable living conditions over the past year. Our teams identified various reasons for this, including deeply ingrained societal prejudices, cultural or religious beliefs, fear of social stigma, lack of understanding or misinformation about LGBTQ+ identities, and discomfort with non-conformity to traditional gender roles and sexual norms.

Reason for Housing Situation	Current Housing Situation
LGBTQ+ Specific Discrimination	Living with Family
Family Breakdown	Sofa Surfing
Domestic Abuse	Supported Housing
Unemployment	Local Authority
Hate Crime	Housing Association

It's also important to note that a common reason people reach out to Stonewall Housing is that their current supported accommodation is unsuitable. LGBTQ+ individuals, especially trans and gender nonconforming people, sometimes face abuse and hate crimes in mainstream housing environments simply for being themselves. This highlights the critical need for specialised supported accommodation.

Who we support

The data we collect includes age, ethnicity, religion, lived experiences of trans identities, region, and sexual orientation. All of this data is tracked and logged using our GDPR compliant CRM, Salesforce, ensuring comprehensive and efficient record-keeping.

Gender

The prevalence of housing insecurity among our trans service users highlights a concerning trend within the community. Many individuals frequently find themselves in environments that compromise their safety and fail to meet their needs.

"Our trans and gender nonconforming service users have cited increased levels of discrimination and social exclusion, which significantly heighten their risk of homelessness. Many experience rejection from family and friends, workplace hostility, and challenges in accessing healthcare and social services that affirm their gender identity. These factors contribute to precarious living situations, making specialised housing services, such as those provided by Stonewall Housing, essential."

Smita Badami-Rai, Senior Practitioner

"Mainstream housing services frequently lack the necessary training and awareness to support trans individuals adequately, leading to environments that may feel unsafe or unwelcoming."

Stonewall Housing is dedicated to creating inclusive spaces and providing tailored support that acknowledges and respects the identities of trans service users. This commitment not only meets immediate housing needs but also fosters a sense of community and belonging, which is crucial for long-term stability and well-being"

Alex Duffy, Training Lead

Notably, 27.7% of our service users are trans or gender nonconforming, which underscores the urgent need for targeted housing support. This figure reflects both the prevalence of housing insecurity among trans and gender nonconforming individuals and the effectiveness of our inclusive approach in addressing these challenges.

Trans Woman Seeking Housing Support

Stonewall Housing received a referral for housing support for a trans woman in her 20s facing financial hardship. She was utilising her welfare benefits to cover the expenses of the family home and to support her mother and siblings. However, it became apparent that she was experiencing financial abuse and coercive control, with her mother exerting control over her gender identity and threatening eviction as a means of control.

Recognising her housing need and the abusive dynamics, Stonewall Housing assisted the service user in obtaining supported housing. Additionally, she was referred to employment and training opportunities, assisted in joining the social housing register, and connected with mental health support services. Stonewall Housing also provided details of LGBTQ+ specific community resources to help her build support networks and resilience. Moreover, she was signposted to trans-specific support to navigate her gender-affirming journey.

After moving into supported accommodation, the service user expressed gratitude and satisfaction. She reported being a responsible tenant, promptly addressing any issues with her landlords and ensuring bills were paid. In her messages, she expressed appreciation for the support provided by her caseworker, acknowledging them as a reliable source of support in housing matters. She also expressed determination to continue progressing towards securing her own flat and moving forward with her life.

"You have been a good backbone of support I can count on and if anything ever goes wrong I know who to call."

Sexual Orientation

Lesbian, gay, and queer identities have remained consistent from last year. Stonewall Housing's data shows a diverse range of sexual orientations within the LGBTQ+ community. More men use our services, so a higher number identify as "gay" in our data.

We also know that for some service users, "gay" serves as an umbrella term that encompasses various sexual orientations, including "lesbian," "bisexual," or others.

Sexuality Stats

Religion

At Stonewall Housing, we frequently encounter service users whose homelessness stems from conflicts related to religious beliefs. This issue highlights the complex intersection of faith, identity, and housing insecurity. For some of our LGBTQ+ service users, coming out has resulted in severe repercussions within religious families including disownment and expulsion, which often leads to homelessness.

"Conflicts stemming from religious beliefs often lead to homelessness for LGBTQ+ individuals, highlighting the intersection of faith and identity in housing insecurity. In the context of the cost of living crisis, individuals who are disowned or expelled from their homes due to their LGBTQ+ identity face even greater challenges in securing safe and affordable housing. The economic pressure exacerbates their vulnerability, limiting their access to supportive environments that respect both faith and identity essential for their stability."

Thai O'Reilly, Senior Practitioner

Age

25 or Younger

We recognise that 31% of our service users are 25 or younger, highlighting the unique challenges faced by young LGBTQ+ individuals.

"Stonewall Housing is dedicated to addressing these challenges by providing targeted support and resources for young LGBTQ+ individuals. For example, our supported accommodation scheme in London offers a safe space for young people facing familial rejection. Our aim is to create pathways to stability and independence, ensuring every young person has the opportunity to thrive in an environment that values and respects their identity."

John Stubbs, Director of Services

Over 50s

Our over-50s advocacy service has seen a 12% increase in individuals seeking housing support. Recognising the unique needs of older LGBTQ+ people, Stonewall Housing has been running a specialised support service for those 50+ since 2021. This service includes tailored case management, wellbeing support, and assistance with navigating healthcare and social services, addressing both immediate housing needs and long-term stability.

“Stonewall Housing is the only gay charity helping older gays like me.”

Stonewall Housing service user

“This rise can be attributed to several factors cited by our service users over 50: the COVID-19 pandemic exacerbated existing vulnerabilities, resulting in increased economic hardship and social isolation. Our improved outreach efforts and increased visibility have also raised awareness of this specialised service. Additionally, the closure of Opening Doors, a charity supporting older LGBTQ+ individuals, in 2023 has driven more people to seek assistance from us. This combination of heightened vulnerability, better outreach, and reduced service availability has significantly increased the demand for our services.”

Service User in Birmingham

A service user in his late 50s sought assistance from Stonewall Housing due to surviving domestic abuse. He had been identified as high risk of significant harm through the Multi-Agency Risk Assessment Conference (MARAC) process. Referred by an LGBTQ+ Independent Domestic Violence Advisor (IDVA) from a partner organisation, the client faced numerous challenges. He suffered from multiple physical and mental health issues and was socially isolated due to the perpetrator's actions.

After facing eviction from his residence of seven years due to rent arrears resulting from illness and a suicide attempt, the client approached the local authority for assistance. Unfortunately, he was placed in interim accommodation with the perpetrator. Later, he moved to another property with the same perpetrator, enduring escalating levels of abuse including financial, physical, verbal, and coercive control.

The situation worsened as the perpetrator's behaviour led to property damage and antisocial conduct, resulting in eviction without alternative accommodation. Alone, the client sought housing support from Birmingham City Council, facing gatekeeping from various housing officers. Emergency accommodation was arranged for two consecutive nights by the Out of Hours housing team.

Advocating on behalf of the client, Stonewall Housing successfully secured interim accommodation through the local authority. Support included assisting him in bidding for properties on the social housing register. Eventually, he was offered sheltered accommodation in a safe area for individuals over 55. In addition to housing support, the client received guidance on benefits, tenancy matters, safety planning, and referrals to community resources to enhance his confidence, networks, and personal resilience.

Ethnicity

51% of our service users are Black or from other ethnic minority groups, highlighting the clear connection between racial or ethnic discrimination and increased exposure to homelessness.

"The data follows broader homelessness trends in England, that individuals from Black and minoritised ethnic backgrounds face the highest levels of homelessness risk. These individuals are often on the front lines of systemic inequities, facing barriers that others do not, including discrimination in the form of biased application processes, unjust eviction practices, and unequal treatment in housing services."

Refugee Seeking Housing Support

A woman in her 30s sought assistance from Stonewall Housing for housing support after recently being granted refugee status. She had fled her country of origin due to persecution based on her LGBTQ+ identity. While residing in Home Office accommodation, she endured significant domestic abuse, prompting police involvement and engagement with various support agencies.

After consulting with a member of the Stonewall Housing team, the client made the decision to remain in the area. She was prioritised with an allocation banding on the social housing register, and Stonewall Housing provided support throughout the bidding process. Eventually, she was offered a tenancy with a housing association.

In addition to housing support, Stonewall Housing assisted her with benefits advice and provided referrals to other organisations for further assistance.

"Thank you for all the support and help. It's a bit overwhelming but I'm very happy [that] for the first time in a very long time, I'm able to sleep without interruption since the place is very quiet. I appreciate the support and advice you have given me."

Drugs & Alcohol

Discrimination, rejection, and trauma can exacerbate substance misuse as a coping mechanism, compounded by the challenges of homelessness, which make accessing support even more difficult.

Through client feedback and analysis, we identified a 4.3% increase in the number of current service users who disclosed that they were turning to substance use as a way to cope with their housing situation. To address this, we introduced our first-ever national caseworker specialising in drugs and alcohol. This specialist provides targeted support and resources to ensure individuals struggling with substance abuse receive help regardless of their location, aligning with our holistic approach to supporting our community.

"Our housing and substance use advocacy service has seen a notable increase in referrals stemming from individuals affected by the surging cost of living crisis. A significant portion of our service users may turn to risky behaviours, including drug use, as a coping mechanism. Additionally, the burden of mental health challenges compounds these struggles, adding complexity to the difficulties faced by our service users."

Lucy Kilbane, Substance Misuse Practitioner

Region

In 2022/23, 74% of our service users were London-based. Recognising the importance of extending our support beyond the capital, we implemented targeted initiatives to reach a broader geographic area. Our latest statistics show significant progress:

- London: 66%
- England (outside London): 30%
- Wales: 2%
- Northern Ireland: 0.5%
- Scotland: 2%

The decrease in the proportion of London-based service users from 74% to 66% indicates our successful extension of support to other regions. We are committed to further expanding and improving our services to ensure that every member of the LGBTQ+ community has access to the support and resources they need, regardless of their location in the UK.

Growth by Region

As part of our efforts to expand services beyond London, we hired a caseworker in Birmingham in June 2023. Since then, we've seen a remarkable 343% increase in the number of individuals we've supported in the region over the past year.

We continued to strengthen our presence in Birmingham by appointing a Development Officer, who is focused on expanding our reach through strategic partnerships and increasing our visibility.

“They have knowledge of and can offer advice on how to access support, and as a service they can signpost or refer you to services on your behalf that they think will be appropriate and able to support with your situation if it does not fall under their own remit or if you're not based in the London area.”

Health

26.1% of our service users have disclosed struggling with mental health challenges. We have also seen a rise in referrals from individuals who have experienced breakdowns in relationships with medical professionals, leading to a loss of trust in their ability to understand LGBTQ+ needs.

"This often points to a lack of LGBTQ+ awareness or instances of discrimination. Adding to these challenges is the increasing inaccessibility of essential services, such as gender affirming support or treatment for gender dysphoria, which is having a significant impact on our clients' mental wellbeing."

Abuse

The ongoing cost of living crisis is preventing many of our service users from escaping their domestic abuse situations. Consequently, our frontline team finds themselves increasingly engaged in providing safety planning support. Additionally, our resettlement team are offering more intensive assistance to clients in setting up new bank accounts, making benefit claims, and providing financial support for essential items like food.

"One of the most significant challenges identified by our service users and frontline team is the widespread difficulty in accessing safe accommodation through local authorities. This issue is further compounded by a lack of LGBTQ+ awareness during assessments, making the search for refuge even more challenging."

Staff and service users

Collecting feedback from both our staff and service users is crucial for us. It helps us understand the needs of our community better, tailor our support, and ensure our services are truly inclusive. By knowing who we're reaching and where we can improve, we can deliver more effective support and highlight our impact to stakeholders. It also allows us to ensure we're fostering an inclusive workplace that reflects the diversity of those we support.

Feedback from service users

At the end of their support period, Stonewall Housing service users are asked to provide feedback on their experience.

“They are lovely people to talk to, they are understanding of people's needs and what it's like to be LGBTQ+. They are able to attend to [issues with my] homelessness and finding a place to live.”

Feedback from staff

In March 2024, we conducted an online survey with all Stonewall Housing staff to gain a deeper understanding of their experiences, achieving a 100% response rate. Here are some key findings:

- 100% of staff say that they feel motivated in their role either all of the time or most of the time
- 100% of staff agree that Stonewall Housing is committed to continuous improvement
- 100% of staff would tell people that Stonewall Housing is a good place to work
- 95% of staff say they receive the training to do their job
- 100% of staff say that carrying out their role gives them a feeling of personal achievement

Our LGBTQ+ housing training

Stonewall Housing offers bespoke LGBTQ+ awareness and inclusion training to professionals - including staff working in statutory services like local authorities, voluntary sector organisations like homelessness charities and domestic abuse services, and housing providers. In the last financial year, we worked with 38 organisations, providing training to over 1150 people.

Our training and workshops are informed by over 40 years of experience delivering services to LGBTQ+ people. They are designed to provide a safe, yet challenging, learning environment.

“It was practical, well-paced, friendly, and used discussions and examples that I can transfer into my work straight away, giving me more confidence that I am supporting the LGBTQI+ community as best I can.”

Practitioner trained

In 2023-2024, we were funded by MOPAC to deliver training on LGBTQ+ experiences of domestic abuse. In the training, we aimed to:

- Expand participants' understanding of LGBTQ+ terminology and history.
- Increase awareness of LGBTQ+ experiences of domestic abuse through an intersectional lens.
- Highlight the dynamics associated with LGBTQ+ domestic abuse.
- Equip participants with practical tools to meet the needs of LGBTQ+ individuals using their services.

The feedback for these sessions was overwhelmingly positive.

We asked respondents to think about their knowledge and their confidence levels about the topic. We asked them to think back to how they felt before the training, and to think about how they felt once the training was complete, and to give a score out of 10, with 1 meaning that they knew nothing. On average, participants rated their knowledge before the training as 5.9, and their knowledge after the training as 8.7.

Volunteer update

We felt an immense swell of support from our volunteers this year and Stonewall Housing wouldn't have achieved what we did without them. Whether it was through fundraising events, increasing visibility, maintaining our supported accommodation schemes with gardening days, or supporting our live chat, our volunteers dedicated a total of 440+ hours to help end LGBTQ+ homelessness.

“Volunteering for Stonewall Housing sits in my heart, just as the homeless kid I was once still lives inside me. Volunteering allows me to say thank you, no one has made it through life without someone else's help - giving back is at the core of being a human.”

Stonewall Housing Volunteer

"Our beautiful community of volunteers brings a diverse skillset, enabling us to explore new projects and amplify our voice. Their dedication to Stonewall Housing expands our services, maximises the impact of our events, and achieve things we couldn't accomplish without them."

Your donations matter

Our dedicated team offers services such as telephone advice sessions and advocacy for those in really difficult situations. These efforts have been sustained thanks to the generosity of our supporters, and we are incredibly grateful for every donation received.

Your donations in action

Your contributions make a tangible difference. Here's how your donation can help:

£9.50

can cover the cost of a telephone advice session, offering essential guidance and reassurance to a vulnerable LGBTQ+ person worried about their housing situation.

£28

can provide a night of safety in emergency accommodation and travel vouchers, ensuring someone in crisis has a secure place to stay.

£90

can provide a 1-1 advocacy session for someone fleeing Domestic Abuse.

The power of regular giving

While one-time donations are incredibly valuable, setting up a Direct Debit can have an even greater impact on our work at Stonewall Housing. Regular contributions provide us with a steady and predictable source of income, allowing us to plan more effectively and respond swiftly to the needs of those we support.

- Sustained support: Regular donations ensure we have the resources to maintain our essential services year-round.
- Efficient planning: With predictable income, we can budget more accurately, allocate resources where they're most needed, and invest in long-term projects to help even more LGBTQ+ individuals.
- Lower administrative costs: Direct Debits reduce our administrative expenses, allowing more of your donation to go directly to supporting our clients.

By setting up a Direct Debit, you can make a continuous, positive difference in the lives of LGBTQ+ people facing housing insecurity. It's a simple way to ensure that your support goes further, every month.

Our Strategic Objectives

Stonewall Housing is grounded in grassroots activism, anti-discrimination, inclusion and equality. Everything we do is about making sure LGBTQ+ people are afforded their basic human right to be housed in safe accommodation where they can live authentically and free from fear.

Looking to the future, three new strategic aims have been identified, each seeking to ensure that Stonewall Housing is able to reach more LGBTQ+ people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness.

GROWTH

To expand our services and increase our accessibility to reach all LGBTQ+ people in housing need.

We will do this by:

- Expanding our services to towns and cities across the UK.
- Making sure all LGBTQ+ people know who we are and can access our services.
- Increasing income to the organisation through new contracts and increased donations.

INFLUENCE

To use our influence to ensure LGBTQ+ people can access safe housing.

We will do this by:

- Amplifying the voice of LGBTQ+ people who have experienced homelessness.
- Contributing to impactful LGBTQ+ research.
- Working closely with local and central government.

EXCELLENCE

To be an excellent employer, partner and deliver outstanding services.

We will do this by:

- Listening to our service users, volunteers, staff and partners and acting upon what they tell us. Celebrating our successes and learning from our mistakes.
- Collaborating with partners to ensure all LGBTQ+ people have somewhere safe to call home.

Special thanks

As we come to the end of this year's report, I am filled with immense pride and deep gratitude for everything we have achieved together. The journey that Stonewall Housing has been on this year is a testament to the power of collaboration, resilience, and unwavering commitment to the LGBTQ+ community.

First and foremost, I want to extend my heartfelt thanks to our incredible staff and volunteers. Every day, your passion and dedication ensure that LGBTQ+ individuals across the UK have access to the safe, supportive environments they need to thrive. You are the heart and soul of Stonewall Housing, and it is because of you that we have been able to meet the growing demand for our services, expanding our reach beyond London and touching lives in Birmingham, Brighton, and beyond.

To our generous donors and supporters - your contributions have made this work possible. Whether through financial donations, fundraising efforts, or raising awareness, your commitment fuels our ability to continue providing life-changing services. Thank you for believing in our mission and standing with us every step of the way.

I also want to express deep appreciation to our commissioners, partners, and trustees. Your leadership, strategic guidance, and shared vision have helped Stonewall Housing navigate the challenges of a rapidly changing landscape. Together, we have been able to advocate for systemic change, ensuring that LGBTQ+ voices are heard in the corridors of power, and that housing solutions are inclusive and accessible to all.

To our service users - your strength, courage, and trust in us inspire everything we do. You remind us every day why this work is so important. It is an honour to support you, and we will continue to stand with you as we work toward a future where every LGBTQ+ individual has a safe and affirming place to call home.

Finally, I want to thank our incredible ambassadors and champions. Your advocacy, both public and behind the scenes, has helped amplify our message and extend our reach to new communities and supporters. You play a crucial role in shaping the narrative around LGBTQ+ housing issues, and we are incredibly grateful for your continued dedication.

While we celebrate the progress we've made, we know there is much more to be done. The challenges that lie ahead are significant - discrimination, economic inequality, and a rising cost of living continue to disproportionately impact the LGBTQ+ community. But I have no doubt that, together, we are more than capable of overcoming these challenges.

When we come together - staff, volunteers, donors, commissioners, trustees, service users, and advocates - there is no limit to what we can achieve. Each of us plays a vital role in this mission, and it is only through our collective efforts that we will create a future where everyone, regardless of their identity or circumstances, has the security and dignity they deserve.

As we look ahead, I feel optimistic and hopeful. We are stronger together, and with your continued support, we will rise to meet the challenges before us. Thank you for being a part of this journey, for your unwavering commitment to Stonewall Housing, and for believing in the brighter future we are building - together.
